BROTHERS AND MARTIN HELD IN MURDERS, CONVICTED SAME DAY

CLEVELAND SLAYER FACING LIFE TERM; DEFENSE TO APPEAL

Renew Investigation Of Potter Slaying; Expect Arrests

CLEVELAND, April 4. — Found guilty of first degree murder with mercy in the death of former Councilman William E. Potter, Hyman "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, self-admitted rum runner and gambler, today faced a sentence of life imprisonment in Ohio penitentiary.

Brought to a dramatic close after an eleven-day session, the trial was a distinct victory for the state, which today continued its investigation of the brutal slaying of the former councilman in the hope of apprehending other persons involved in the crime.

A few minutes after the jury of seven men and five women brought in the guilty verdict after a twelve-hour deliberation, the county prosecutor's office and Cleveland police were bending their efforts toward uncovering the "higher-ups" behind the killing.

"Hymie was a hired gunman," County Prosecutor Ray T. Miller declared. "We have proved that to the satisfaction of the twelve jurors. We are now going after Hymie Martin's confederates and those who hired him."

Detectives today were engaged in an intensive hunt for the mysterious Louis Klein, alias Louis Roddy, alias Harry Collins, alias Charles Marks, with whom the convicted slayer was associated at a downtown hotel a few days before the Potter murder.

"The man of many aliases," as he is termed by police, disappeared on February 4, the day after Potter was shot down in the Parkwood Drive apartment. Police worked on the theory that he was one of the actual triggermen in the slaying.

As the first step in the renewed investigation of the killing, Chief of Police George Matowitz forwarded a request to the Pittsburgh homicide bureau to pick up two men for questioning in the killing. The names of the two men were not divulged.

The twelve jurors were visibly relieved after they had brought in the verdict which held Hymie Martin on life without hope of pardon. It was learned that a bitter fight had been waged in the jury room since the first ballot when the vote stood at seven to five for conviction.

Firm for acquittal, three women and two men jurors, who voted in favor of Martin, at last finally agreed to accept a compromise of guilty with mercy for the accused man.

The verdict was returned at 4:55 p. m., exactly twenty-six hours after the slaying.

HUNDREDS ATTEND ANNUAL FESTIVAL

CHARDON, O., April 4.—This town was the mecca for hundreds of visitors today as the sixth annual Geauga County Maple Sugar Festival drew near a close, presenting a colorful program which carried out in detail the contrasting life of a century ago with the present age.

The fragrant scent of maple sap boiling pervaded the entire community while society women paraded in gowns of fashion 100 years ago and rode through the throngs in a trolley. Maple sap was boiling in rude camps of 1855 vintage and, a few feet away, in modern sugar houses.

Chardon's famous Rube Band, after parading the streets in the even more famous Chardon band wagon, maintained a lively tune for spectators at City Hall where antiques from hundreds of farm homes filled the rooms. In one corridor, chairs dating back 200 years or more filled the hallway.

DUFFY UNOPPOSED

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 4. James M. Duffy of East Liverpool, who is now serving his second term as president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery, will be unopposed for re-election, it was stated here today following a canvass of the vote cast in the March primaries.

SEEK BANDITS IN BANK THEFT

Escape With $2,000 In Ohio Village

DOVER, O., April 4.—Wide-spread search was pressed by authorities today for three bandits, who armed and masked, held up three officials and a customer of the Indian Village Savings & Loan Company at Gnadenhuetten in Tuscarawas county near here late yesterday and fled in an automobile with $2,000 loot.

The car in which the robbers escaped bore license plates issued at Mansfield, a check-up by police revealed. The license plates, authorities hope, may lead to the capture of the bandit trio.

Flourishing a revolver threateningly, one of the bandits entered the bank yesterday afternoon shortly before closing time and held the institution's officials and the customer at bay while his two accomplices, who followed him, scooped up all available cash in sight.

When Mrs. Ruth Spear hesitated a fraction of a moment before obeying the bandit's commands, the gunman threatened to kill her. D. V. Heck, president of the institution, and J. Schweinman, vice president told police the bandits worked unhurriedly.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The treasury balance as of April 2: $512,652,159.44; expenditures, $8,332,422.03; customs receipts, $2,483,948.85.

WEARY JURORS FIND GUILTY VERDICT IN LINGLE DEATH CASE

Defense To Appeal; Say Jury Forced To Return Verdict

CHICAGO, April 4. — Attorneys for Leo V. Brothers today are mustering their forces to prevent the natty St. Louis gunman from serving fourteen years in prison, inflicted by a jury for the murder of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, reporter.

Already, a motion for a new trial has been made and a hearing set for April 17.

The verdict, described as a "compromise verdict," was reached by the jury late yesterday, after twenty-seven hours of deliberation.

Twenty-four ballots were taken on the question of guilt or innocence of the tall, debonair fashion-plate, who rose to nation-wide notoriety as a result of his three-week trial here, accused of having shot Lingle to death in a pedestrian tunnel last June 9.

If the verdict is sustained in the higher courts, Brothers must serve eight years and three months in the penitentiary before he is eligible for parole.

In their appeal, defense attorneys will base their main arguments on the pressure applied to the jury in the refusal of the judge to allow them to sleep.

The jury had been kept without sleep for practically twenty-seven hours before it returned a verdict to Judge Joseph Sabath. After the first ballot Thursday afternoon, which showed the jurors voting "not guilty," only one juror held out for acquittal, it was reported.

This lone "holdout" persisted in his stand until physical exhaustion caused him to yield late yesterday, it was reported.

The courtroom was packed when word got around that the jury finally had reached a verdict. Judge Sabath announced from the bench that there were fifty detectives in the courtroom and were ready to arrest anyone for making a demonstration of any kind.

The defendant's father, V. Harvey Brothers, Chicago barber, his mother, Mrs. Rose Jesse, of Webster Grove, Mo., and his sweetheart, Miss Betty Cook, were on hand. Brothers' mother left the courtroom just before the verdict was read.

Brothers maintained his customary stony-faced calm upon hearing the verdict. His mother, who returned later, cried broken-heartedly at the news.

His sweetheart, Miss Cook collapsed in hysteria when the jury decided that Brothers was the answer to the oft-repeated question here, "Who killed Lingle?" She sobbed as she passed among the spectators and went into a witness room and hid, unwittingly locking herself in. It was nearly a half hour before a bailiff could be found to free her.

While the jury had agreed not to discuss this unusual trial, it was reported that there was one point in the case that caused them to deliberate so long. It was not stated what it was, but it was pointed out by court observers that it might have been the inability of the state to prove the motive for the murder, and it might have been the failure of Brothers to take the witness stand.

This was one of the few murder trials on record here where a verdict was returned.

ERUPTING VOLCANO MENACES HUNDREDS

LONDON, April 4.—An erupting volcano on Kuchelab Island, Kagoshima Prefecture in southern Japan, today drove hundreds of villagers on its slopes from their homes in terror.

Messages from Osaka indicated that the dormant volcano, becoming suddenly active, shot tons of hot ashes and lava into the air. Communication facilities were disrupted almost immediately.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR VETERAN PILOT

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—About the same time Knute Rockne is laid to rest at South Bend, Ind., the man who piloted the plane in which the noted coach lost his life will be buried here today.

New York's Easter Parade Expected To Be Colorful But Conservative

NEW YORK, April 4. — Solid colors and extreme conservatism will prevail in the Easter fashion parade, style experts agreed here today.

The "very latest" color for the costume of the smartly dressed American woman is brown; but she may also wear blue or black and remain "chic."

The well-dressed American man as he walks down the avenue with his lady will be quietly fashionable. The only touch of color in his costume will be a tie of a primary color preferably blue. These masculine fashion notes were given to International News Service by the haberdasher to Mayor "Jimmie" Walker who is a recognized Beau Brummel.

Lent Ends As Bells Peal With Joy

Churches Proclaim Glory Of Risen Saviour

ROME, April 4.—Hundreds of Americans knelt with a great throng in the circular plaza of St. Peter's at noon today as Lent officially ended and the mighty bells of the edifice pealed forth the glory of Easter.

The chimes of 364 other churches immediately responded to the joyous signal with a chorus of sound that echoed and re-echoed through the ancient capital. Simultaneously, Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, turned from the altar of the great cathedral and lit the colossal Easter candle. It was eight feet high and more than three inches wide.

In the cathedral of Rome, the resurrection of Christ was symbolized with the lighting and blessing of the "Holy Fire," an elaborate ceremony dating back to the middle ages.

Headed by Cardinal Pompili, a tremendous procession of clergy marched slowly out of the church proper to its beautiful portico, chanting the ancient hymns of the Catholic Church as the prelate struck a spark from flint and lighted the sacred fire.

In all of the leading edifices of Rome, similar rites marked the historical anniversary of the Risen Christ. Holy water drained from the basins Good Friday was again restored; priests were ordained and converts baptized. Parish priests in Rome and throughout Italy visited Catholic homes to bless the abodes of the faithful.

But while religious activities occupied a large part of the program of Roman Catholics, the capital itself hailed Easter as a real holiday. Saturday and Easter Sunday, to the native Roman, signified twenty-four hours of uninterrupted feasting and celebrating.

The proverbial Easter eggs, roast lamb and native pastries appeared on every family table in Rome today and will be lavishly eaten in evidence for the next several days.

ARGENTINE IS HIT BY QUAKES

BUENOS AIRES, April 4.—A severe earthquake was reported to have rocked the northern region of the Argentine on Good Friday, according to messages received today.

Extensive property damage was reported in the provinces Salta, Catamarca, Santiago Del Estero, Tucuman, Jujuy and the territory of Los Andes. As far as could be learned, there were no casualties.

The shock, which lasted half a minute, apparently centered near the city of Tucuman.

PLAN BRAZIL FLIGHT

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 4.—The giant German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, veteran of many ocean crossings, will make another flight to Brazil in August, it was reported here today.

In all parts of the country tomorrow people will parade down the street, boulevard and avenue in their new spring clothes. Department stores have reported a good sale of spring clothes. The weather man has promised that in nearly all sections of the country fair weather will contribute to a glorious Easter morning.

The young lady who dresses as follows will be especially smiled upon by the gods of fashion: A jaunty brown suit of spongy woolen and a white shirtwaist. A "rough straw" hat to match with a solid colored band. Perhaps a Russian sable thrown nonchalantly across her shoulders. Very long white kid gloves. An all white patent leather handbag. Flesh colored stockings. Brown kid shoes trimmed with water snake or python and white kid bow ties.

The American man to reflect the plate of fashion will dress as follows: A grey felt hat with a brown band. A plain blue tie with a white shirt and collar. A grey Cambridge sack suit. Grey suede gloves and a natural malacca cane. A plain white handkerchief stuffed in the left breast pocket. Plain black leather shoes. No fancy ties or colored handkerchiefs and no spats.

Down Fifth Avenue in Manhattan, Connecticut Avenue in Washington, Michigan Boulevard in Chicago, Market Street, in San Francisco and the "Main Streets" of Ohio, America will go marching on into spring days; and happy days according to the song.

MARTIAL LAW RESTORES ORDER IN QUAKE CITY; MARAUDERS SHOT DOWN

HERE'S GOOD NEWS!

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—Marilyn's Easter bonnet may be worn without fear tomorrow in Ohio. Weather bureau officials said Easter Sunday would be clear with sunshine and warmer temperature. The morning hours are expected to be cooler, but it may be as warm as 50 degrees above Sunday afternoon. Continued rain was forecast for today and tonight, however.

WARDEN OPPOSED TO LETTING CONVICTS PROTECT PLOTTERS

Thinks Others Should Be Brought Into Investigation

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—Though refusing to voice an official protest, Warden Preston E. Thomas of the Ohio Penitentiary today was opposed to what he believes is the plan of two convicts to "take the rap" for other plotters said to be equally guilty of starting the Easter Monday fire.

Warden Thomas admitted he is opposed to seeing the wishes of Hugh Gibson and Clinton Grate, two convicts already indicted, carried out. The pair, following an alleged confession which resulted in the return of indictments against them, said they want to die in the electric chair at once "to get it over."

The Warden indicated that he believes other convicts also had important parts in the fire which cost 320 lives and that their roles also should be exposed.

Warden Thomas hinted that he believes the names of others accused of parts in the fire will be made public before Gibson and Grate will be permitted to get a sentence of any kind.

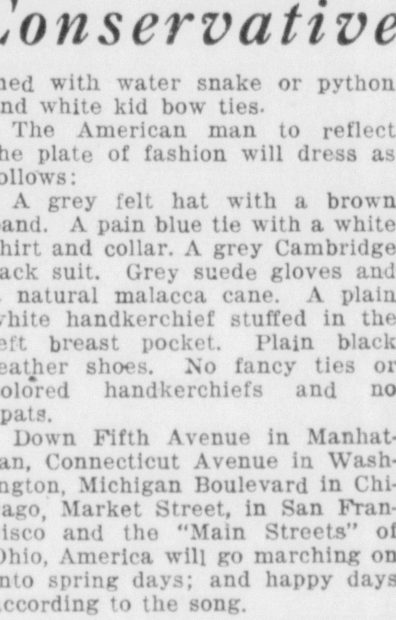

Throughout the alleged confessions of Gibson and Grate, names of at least four other convicts are said to be found. So far those names have been undisclosed. One of the group, it was said, has been questioned, repeatedly, but has refused to admit any connection with the tragedy.

Possibility that the Warden may unseat his lips about details of the fire was seen today with the announcement that he has agreed to address the Springfield Junior Chamber of Commerce April 14.

BUILDING RAZED

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—Several clues were being sifted here today in an effort to determine the origin of a fire which swept the interior of an abandoned three-story brick building late yesterday.

WINS FREEDOM

Jocelyn Lee, above, screen actress, was granted a divorce from Luther Reed, film director, in Los Angeles, Friday after a bitterly fought five day contest. She also won custody of their two children.

KNUTE ROCKNE LAID TO REST FOLLOWING REQUIEM SERVICES

Campus Church Scene Of Rites; Viking Spirit At Peace

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 4.—When dusk comes down over the Indiana farm lands late today they'll lay Knute Rockne away to his last rest.

Notre Dame warriors of the sport, field men of muscle—but tender hands—will carry him to his haven in Highland Cemetery, close by Old Council Oak where, 250 years ago, La Salle sat and smoked the pipe of peace with the Indians.

Here on nights when the wind is still, the chimes from the Sacred Heart Church on the campus will echo over the shrine and quiet his restless spirit.

Requiem services at 3 o'clock will be simple and devoid of pomp. Rockne would want it that way. As the great Viking heart is brought to the foot of the altar, the choir will sing "Populus Meus," to be followed later by the "Miserere," the "Subvenite" and "O Vos Omnes."

Then the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell will deliver the sermon on the man whose passing grieved a whole country. He will speak as to a pal, because he knew Rockne since the first time he stepped on the campus lugging a battered suitcase twenty years ago.

The blessing will follow with the Rev. Michael Mulcaire, C. S. C., Rev. Thomas Steine, C. S. C., and the Rev. John P. O'Hara, C. S. C., officiating. The Rev. William O'Connor will act as master of ceremonies.

Although thousands—from all parts of the country—will trod the campus, there will be room for no more than 1500 inside the church. Only those holding cards will be admitted.

Amplifiers will carry the complete ceremony and Father O'Donnell's eulogy to all parts of the campus, while both the National and Columbia Broadcasting Companies will present the service to fifty million listeners.

Boys whom Rock drilled to two national football championships will escort him as pall bearers — Tom Conley, Tom Yarr, Frank (Continued On Page Six)

HOUSE RANSACKED AND JEWELS STOLEN

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 4.—Returning to their home for the Easter vacation, Mrs. Nellie Sturges and her daughter, Helen, a student at the Margaret Morrison School in Pittsburgh, found thieves had entered the house and made away with two rings, a pendant and a brooch, valued at approximately $4,000, it was revealed today.

The housebreakers gained entrance to the residence by removing a strip from the side door and inserting a knife to release the lock.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HOOVER TO ENTERTAIN YOUTHFUL BUS HERO

WASHINGTON, April 4.—President and Mrs. Hoover were looking forward today to entertaining a real American hero—13-year-old Bryan Untied, who tried so hard to save the lives of his schoolmates when they were snowbound in a school bus last week near Lamar, Colo.

Mr. Hoover was on his Caribbean cruise when the tragedy occurred—when the zero weather claimed the lives of five small children, including Bryan's brother. He read about it when he returned here and was so impressed by the boy's sacrifice to those younger and weaker than he, that he invited him to come here with him in the next ten days and to stay overnight at the White House.

Bryan was placed in charge of the children when the chauffeur left in search of help. He froze en route, Bryan spurred the encouragement of the children by performing acrobatic stunts in the cold bus and then he sacrificed his own clothing, piece by piece, as the children cried from frost bite.

He now is recuperating from frostbite at Lamar Hospital. The notes in Mills' coat and from its contents were able to get information from Grate which led to the indictment of both men.

As a trusty for temporary purposes, Mills will not be often in the company of the men who threatened him. Prison officials said the step was taken to prevent possible conflict between Mills and other men.

BOOTLEGGERS FLEE AFTER HOLDING OFF POSSE OF OFFICIALS

Leaves $50,000 Worth Of Liquor; Troopers Continue Search

FALMOUTH, Mass., April 4.—Five liquor smugglers, barricaded in a house, gave battle to town police during the night and after wounding Chief of Police William A. Mercer and Sergeant Roy S. Conant leaped from windows and escaped as police ammunition was exhausted.

Hundreds of shots were fired. Rifles and pistols were used. A posse of state troopers, summoned to the scene immediately went into the woods in search of the fleeing smugglers.

Whether any member of the smuggling gang was injured was not known.

The fugitives left behind them 400 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey valued at $50,000.

After the smugglers had fled through the dense woods in motor trucks and escaped, a coastguard patrol boat from the harbor hole base steamed into the harbor and began a search for 800 cases of liquor believed to have been hidden on the floor of the bay a short distance off shore.

Whether any member of the smuggling gang was wounded in the battle was not known. State troopers searched the woods but without finding any trace of the fugitives.

UNCLE SAM PUTTING GANGSTERS ON SPOT FOR FEDERAL TAXES

Racketeers Find They Can't "Beat Rap" By Government

NEW YORK, April 4.—America's big-time racketeers are worried. Uncle Sam is "putting them on the spot."

The Al Capones of the nation are facing a "rap"—a federal "rap," which they dread. The United States government is after them for making phony income tax returns and they don't like it a bit.

First it was Chicago, where some of Capone's chief henchmen were clapped into prison.

Now it's New York, where next week the federal government will launch a relentless investigation into the income tax accounts of the bootlegger and gangster racketeers who have made millions of dollars by trafficking in liquor, narcotics and women. Fifty revenue agents will come here from Chicago to augment the New York staff in checking unpaid income taxes.

Conceivably government investigations may follow in other racketeer-ridden cities of the country.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalle, who plays a leading role in the federal anti-racketeering campaign here, told international News Service today that the underworld is apprehensive over the impending government drive.

"Al Capone's brother, Ralph says, 'You can't beat a federal rap,'" said Medalle, in pointing out that the racketeers are worried over the situation.

Ralph was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth prison and fined $30,000 for income tax irregularities. It was shown in Chicago that between 1924 and 1929 he banked $1,871,000. The government put it up to him to show why he should not pay a tax on that sum. He couldn't—and the prison sentence resulted.

Other Chicago racketeers felt the heavy hand of the government, including Jack Guzik, Capone's paymaster, who got five years, and Frank Nitti, also of the Capone organization, who was sentenced to eighteen months. Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, retired beer merchants who had incomes of about $125,000 each over a period of time, both pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence.

New York's "big-shot" racketeers are reported to have been in lengthy conference with their high-priced lawyers over ways and means to circumvent the impending federal income tax investigation.

They know that with the government prosecuting them "pull" with local officials is of no consequence.

Among those to be investigated in New York are bootleggers, narcotic peddlers, labor racketeers, night club owners, lottery and pool managers and gamblers who are running "floating" card and dice games in hotels in the Broadway white light district.

CENTENARIAN DIES

STUBENVILLE, O., April 4.—Richard Evans, 102, of the Jefferson County post, was dead today at his home near here. For more than a half century, Evans, who came to America from England at the age of 29, had devoted his life to poetry and music.

PRISON NOTE BEARER IS MADE TRUSTY

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—The prison "runner" in whose clothing was found the note that was used as a clue to obtain alleged confessions of responsibility for the Easter Monday Ohio penitentiary fire has been temporarily removed from the possible danger of wrath of other convicts, it was learned today.

Frank Mills, Montgomery County prisoner, who is said to have carried a note from Hugh Gibson to Clinton Grate, in which the latter was warned to "shut up" about the fire, was made a trusty by Warden Proseton E. Thomas so he may not be endangered by other prisoners who have threatened him. Penitentiary authorities found

DAYTON WOMAN ENDS LIFE; DOMESTIC TROUBLES BLAMED

Poison which she swallowed either by accident or with suicidal intent proved fatal to Mrs. Amy Priest Cory, editress of "Dayton This Week" and former editress of the War Chest and Community Chest at 1:30 a. m. Saturday in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton.

Mrs. Cory, whose first husband was the late Arthur Priest, former resident of Xenia, was said to have taken the poison at the home of a woman friend at 21 North Perry St. in Dayton only a short time before.

Although relatives were convinced she took the poison by mistake, police described her death as a suicide, due to domestic troubles.

For the last nine years Mrs. Cory had published a pamphlet known as Dayton This Week, formerly called the Dayton Dial. Previously, for three years, she was head of the War Chest and continued in this capacity for a short time when it became the Community Chest. At that time her name was Mrs. Amy Priest.

Surviving Mrs. Cory is her husband, Charles, and three children by her former marriage, Mary, Alice and George Priest.

The concentration of Legion man power in Xenia will be sounded by the blowing of factory and Pennsylvania Railroad locomotive whistles and by the ringing of the fire bell, the signal for the first alarm being "3-33."

Immediately alarm bells are to be sounded by all members of Foddy Post are to assemble with all possible speed in post hall in the basement of the Court House, where they will register and be assigned to a company under direction of those in charge of the emergency relief unit recently organized.

President Fuller issued Saturday a final appeal to make this test mobilization an outstanding success locally, pointing out the cooperation of Foddy Post and that of every Legion unit in Ohio will do much to place Ohio in an enviable position nationally.

Following the formal call, Foddy Post will forward a report to state headquarters, stating the number of Legionnaires assembled in fifteen minutes, thirty minutes and sixty minutes instead of thirty, sixty and ninety. The same information will be forwarded for Boy Scouts. Members of the advisory committee of the local relief unit are also asked to respond to the call.

Foddy Post officials have enlisted the cooperation of the telephone exchange in expediting the task of communicating with all members of the post as soon as possible.

LEGION READY FOR EMERGENCY MOBILIZATION TEST ON MONDAY

A call for mobilization of the American Legion of Ohio as a preparedness measure in case of an emergency has been issued by John A. Eldon, state commander, and Legionnaires throughout Greene County are completely prepared to cooperate in the state-wide test Monday.

Some time Monday evening an emergency call will be broadcast over stations WLW at Cincinnati and WTAM at Cleveland, calling upon Legionnaires to assemble in their respective headquarters in response to a simulated emergency in order to demonstrate the Legion's ability to serve the country as efficiently in peace as in war.

Since the Cincinnati and Cleveland radio stations will handle the call, all exservice men of Foddy Post are requested by President Paul Fuller to stay tuned in to one of these stations during the evening hours.

NEW YORK, April 4.—A program of Easter entertainment estimated to cost $1,000,000 will be offered radio listeners Sunday.

The Easter programs will open with sunrise services broadcast from Arlington Cemetery, Washington. This will be offered by the Columbia Broadcasting System, and is the first time Arlington services have been broadcast.

Nation-wide broadcasts will be made by the National Broadcasting Company of a sunrise service in the Walter Reed amphitheater, Washington, with a concert by the United States army band. NBC will also carry a sunrise service at Mount Davidson on the Pacific Coast.

A chorus of 1500 voices at Chicago will be heard over a National Broadcasting Company hookup at 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.)

Nation-wide hookups will air concerts by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Lily Pons, Grand Opera star, will make her radio debut at 7:30 Sunday evening over a National Broadcasting Company hookup.

CLIFTON MAY HAVE TO PAY POEM PRIZE

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—Finding that there is no appropriation with which to pay Mrs. Lydia Keck-Wiggins of Springfield the $500 prize she won in a contest to give Ohio a new state song, Director of Education John L. Clifton today said he may pay the sum out of his own pocket.

Declaring that there is no appropriation for the amount or for that purpose, State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy has refused to honor a voucher for the award. Director Clifton insists that the expenditure was authorized by the state board of control a year ago.

Since he conducted the contest through the state department of education, Dr. Clifton indicated that he will make good the prize money if it is proved that the state has not granted funds for the purpose.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I poured out my complaint before him; I shewed before him my trouble. When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou knewest my path. In the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a snare for me.—Psalm cxlii, 2, 3.

DIG DUE THEM

President Hoover probably expected some heated retorts when he said upon returning from the West Indies:

"There will be no increases in taxes if the next congress imposes no increases upon the budget or other expenditure proposals which the administration will present. But for congress to do this, the people must co-operate to effectually discourage and postpone consideration of the demands of sectional and group interests."

Congress, and particularly the senate, is touchy about that sort of talk. It likes to give the man in the White House tongue lashings whenever the notion to do so assails it, but anything in the way of a return compliment makes many of the members foam at the mouth.

Up to the present time, Senator Borah has fired the only loud sounding return gun. The senator insists that according to the record, congress has appropriated less than the budget bureau has recommended each session for the last 10 years, which is not a very impressive comeback with remembrance of the bonus appropriation and the efforts of certain members of the senate to institute a dole for food sufferers in Arkansas and elsewhere, fresh in the public mind. It is not likely that the country is going to be moved much by anything ruffled members of the national legislature may say. Those personages will get far more public approval if they will receive gracefully the little dig they have received, and which they fully deserve, and will proceed to make admissions from their constituents unnecessary by forestalling them with an economy program.

AMERICAN MARINES

The presence of 1,400 American marines in the neighborhood of Managua, when its buildings were destroyed recently by earthquake and fire, was a fortunate coincidence. Confusion and disorder always follow such holocausts. With the ground still trembling under their feet, with their dwellings tumbling about their heads or being icked up by flames, communication with the outside world interrupted, a food and water shortage and the possibility of an epidemic staring them in the face, any people's nerves are likely to be shaken. The terror and confusion that followed the quake at Managua is said to have been indescribable.

The marines promptly took charge of the situation. They declared martial law. They fought the fire that followed the earthquake and dug among the ruins for survivors. They utilized their equipment and supplies to relieve the hungry. Above all they maintained order and warned off bandits who might have taken occasion of the confusion to raid and loot the stricken city. The spectacle of a perfectly trained organization snapping into action has a steady effect on unstrung nerves. The Nicaraguans are an emotional people. Apparently, when they should have been fighting fire, they turned to prayer. The business-like way in which the marines turned to and saved what was salvageable could not fail to have a helpful effect on the distraught minds of the Managuans.

Sandino to the contrary notwithstanding, we have an idea that the Nicaraguans are jolly glad that, when their capital was razed, a regiment of leathernecks was tenting in its purlieus.

The Atlantic Constitution says very properly that "those American sources, charged with supplying arms and money to the Sandino insurgents, are morally responsible for the deaths of every United States marine killed in Nicaragua and should be treated accordingly." But after all, what can one expect when "American sources" are continually supplying domestic bandits with arms and money, and getting away with it?

We deduce from what President Hoover says that the Danes put over a fast one on the United States in making that Virgin Island trade.

The wild flowers will soon be out again and so will the predatory humans who do their best to exterminate the wild flowers.

There is no longer any place where the person who prefers to inhale his own tobacco smoke exclusively can hide himself.

Now Kemal Pasha is going to try fascism in Turkey. When he gets through with that country it won't know itself.

Some of the stories on the book stands are a direct incentive to self-respecting people to refrain from writing any.

Other Editorial Thoughts

WASHINGTON IN A TRYING SEASON

Everyone familiar with our political history knows that storms will always rage about the office of the presidency. It is the most powerful and also the most arduous and difficult position in the entire world. That our party system has been able to provide us with Presidents who have been faithful to their duties and in a high degree entitled to public confidence should give us reassurance for the future. It was not Mr. Hoover's fault that opposition elements were in control of the Senate, and that there was almost continuous news of disagreements that seemed to be retarding proper conduct of government. Our newspapers upon the whole are honest, sincere and intelligent in their treatment of Washington affairs. They do not mean to give wrong impressions by placing emphasis upon discordant or sensational situations. But the headlines often give a distorted picture, and fail to do justice to the actual movement of public business. Our government machinery does not operate without friction, but at least it runs better than that of any other large country. The political weather was comparatively bright and fair during Mr. Coolidge's years in the White House, but the rough times that have followed his retirement were bound to come. We are not aware of any man in either party who could have guided the Ship of State more capably during these two trying years than Herbert Hoover. — Albert Shaw in The Review of Reviews.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—The phenomenal sale of his book, "Why You Win Or Lose," has prompted Fred C. Kelly to further alluring incursions into the psychology of speculation. Fred's publishers assure us, hands on their hearts, that his forthcoming volume will be of "intense interest" to those who, despite the late unpleasantness, still entertain a craving to finger the ticker tape in the days of the fast approaching Bull Market.

CANDOR

Brother Kelly is a keen and discriminating observer of the human animal. The trait is inherent. When he was a small boy, at the supper table one evening he harked to his Maw pressing a gushing female guest to partake of another biscuit.

"Goodness sakes alive!" giggled the guest, "they're so good I don't know how many I've eaten already."

"You've had four," said Fred.

A CATS'Y JOB

Women hold down all sorts of jobs in New York. There are female blacksmiths, house painters, taxi drivers, and one of them is a cat policeman who rounds up stray felines, alley tramps, matinee pets and stray kittens. Her hardest work is in the Spring and Fall when people move and abandon animals.

In those seasons her average haul is about fifty cats a day.

FASHION NOTE

Some one has unearthed a copy of the Suncock Valley (N. H.). Times of December, 1868, carrying the following engaging style note: "How should our girls be dressed in Winter? In the first place, make a waist of cotton flannel; let the sleeves be long. Make a pair of drawers of the same material, long enough to reach the top of the bootee, and button them upon the waist; then flannel garments made in the same manner except the drawers; they should be finished with a bow and buttoned just below the knee.

"Next the hoops (if they must have them, but girls are much better off without them), and over them a warm, light skirt. Lastly, the dress should be a woolen material, made with long sleeves lined with strong cotton. Strong boots with heavy soles and warm, thick, woolen stockings. When she goes out she should wear a warm saque and mittens."

No wonder Granddad used to think Gran-maw was a warm baby!

SHADES OF BARNUM

A chapeau coral on the Rue de la Quince will, upon request, receive your name, date of birth and address, forward a complete horoscope reading.

Numerology, astrology, palmistry and kindred esoteric branches increasingly claim the attention of dear old, sophisticated Tammany Town.

One of the super-smart shops has been quick to seize upon this prevailing interest, in a clever appeal to the pocketbook. Each of its large display windows shows a complete costume in a different shade—hat, suit or frock, coat, gloves, hose, bag and even umbrella—with a card announcing that this particular color should be worn by the person born under that certain sign of the Zodiac.

Naturally, there is a constant crowd of window shoppers pressing eager faces against the glass, while they look for the costumes that fit their individual signs.

BOTH RIGHT

Says Robert Garland, New York theatre reviewer: "Broadway is merely Main Street with the spotlight on it."

Which is hardly an improvement on the Pastor's observation of a year ago: "Broadway is merely Main Street with a manicure."

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

When was Julius Caesar born? Gaius Julius Caesar was born July 12, 102 B. C. He was killed March 15, 44 B. C.

NINE MUSES

Who were the nine Muses of mythology and over which arts did they preside? The nine Muses and the liberal arts over which they presided were: Clio, history; Calliope, epic poetry; Polyhymnia, sacred hymns; Euterpe, music of the flute and lyric poetry; Terpsichore, melic poetry and the dance; Erato, choral lyric; Melpomene, tragedy; Thalia, comedy, and Urania, astronomy.

According to Hoyt's New Encyclopedia of Practical Quotations, edited by Kate Louise Roberts, lists the quotation "Into each life some rain must fall," as from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "An April Day." This source which we recently quoted in the column, is in error. The poem is "The Rainy Day." Longfellow did write a poem called "An April Day," which appears in the Cambridge edition of his works.

NATIONAL FLOWER

What is the state flower of Pennsylvania and the flower of the United States? Neither has a flower.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped self-addressed envelope for each to Central Press Bureau P. O. Box 126 Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Seeing Washington," "Swimming," "Charles P. Stewart's treatise on 'Our Government,'" and "The World War.")

"You're a Tropism" That's an Insult But Perhaps You Don't Know It The worst thing anybody can say about you is to call you a Tropism. If anybody does—and doesn't smile at the same time—then you'll know it's an insult!

You're being compared with a worm... with one of those things that live under rocks and are sluggish in the cold, but very lively when the sun shines on them... with animals that sleep through the winter... with sensitive plants that discolor at a touch... with anything else that cannot call its soul its own.

If you look it up in the dictionary, as I did, you'll learn that a Tropism is "an innate tendency on the part of an organism to external stimuli."

That may not sound like an insult, but it is.

It means you have no character. You just wait around for things to happen... for the sun to shine, for people to say nice things to you, till you feel "in the mood," till you have an inspiration, for the "breaks" for your luck, for your ship to come in.

If other people are feeling miserable, you feel miserable, too. If you're tired, you're a grouchy. If you don't get what you ask for, you howl.

ANTON J. CERMAK, CANDIDATE, ONCE HARD AS IRON BUT GROWS "PAUNCHY"

CHICAGO, April 1.—Anton J. Cermak's eyes twinkle through large round glasses from a face best described as cherubic. An elderly cherub but jolly. Even in repose Cermak's expression is genial, but it generally is smiling.

Cermak has the effect of a short man, though a comparison with others shows him to be about medium. His thickness undoubtedly is what gives his squat effect to his figure. Basically his bulk is not due to fat, though he has grown somewhat portly with years. Evidently he was hard as iron originally, however, and probably could give a good account of himself yet in a trial of strength—at least as long as his wind held out. His childhood as a mule boy in the coal mines near Braidwood, Ill., was the sort of life to kill a weakness or develop stamina to its maximum.

It should not be supposed that Cermak has arrived where he is without taking on considerable polish. He is too smart to have remained a rough neck if he ever was one.

I knew him a little in the early nineteen hundreds, when he was in the Chicago city council, and I was a reporter for a Windy City newspaper. He was not an altogether unimproved diamond as long ago as that. An exchange of a few words was all I could get with him during the rush of his mayoralty campaign, but it was obvious that large affairs and many contacts with substantial folk have developed him greatly in the last quarter century.

As a matter of fact, Cermak was a night school attendant long after he was fully grown—was in his twenties, at the earliest, when he took courses in accountancy and commercial law. Thus the idea that he is uneducated is not exact. His education was not obtained in the orthodox academic fashion, but he has more of it than many people who have been through universities.

Cermak does not have the typical self-made man's naive satisfaction in his accomplishments. In his old aldermanic days—he has been a member of the legislature, too—he inclined figuratively to slap himself on the back with an air of "And to think that once I was a poor immigrant boy driving mules in a coal mine." There is this atmosphere about him yet. He puts on no airs whatever. Contrariwise, he is rather humble, depreciates himself as far more ignorant than he really is. One knows, however, that he does not actually think so, but still is surreptitiously patting himself on the back.

My own guess is that Cermak has a senate seat in the back of his mind as the ultimate goal of his ambition. It would be nationally showier than the governorship. There is no especial reason why he could not get either if Illinois goes Democratic again in 1932.

Cermak has controlled the Cook county Democratic machine ever since George Brennan's death—and Brennan ran for the senate. He was beaten, to be sure, but the situation is different today. If James Hamilton Lewis could beat Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, as he did, Cermak certainly has a right to wonder whether he cannot beat Senator Otis F. Glenn when Glenn seeks re-election next year—or Charles S. Deneen, if Deneen tries to stage a comeback by taking the Republican nomination away from Glenn.

Cermak enjoys the trappings of office. There is no doubt about it. Power is not enough for him. He wants to wear the regalia, too. "Big Bill" Thompson's jeers at his eastern European name—as

Bill puts it, "Can you picture a World's Fair mayor with a name like that?"—also have hurt him. Cermak has too good taste to answer, and I would hardly say that he is revengeful, but I believe he would enjoy presenting the picture Bill derides simply to prove it to be no impossibility anyway. (It's pronounced Chermock in Bohemian.)

As a political boss—if that is what he is to be considered—Cermak is something unique.

He had his training under Brennan, who in turn had his from Roger Sullivan—all Irish, into which Cermak has introduced Czech ingredients, producing a mixture difficult to describe. "Big Bill" himself has found it confusing.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint
Baked Potatoes
Creamed Tuna Fish or Salmon
Cabbage Watercress Salad
Waffles with Maple Butter
Coffee
Cream your tuna fish or salmon—whichever you decide to use—then put it in the oven for a few minutes before the potatoes are quite done. A bit of water or cream added to the cabbage gives it a spicy, spring taste.

Today's Recipes

Maple Syrup—Cook one cup of maple syrup to the soft ball stage, then add half cup butter and beat until thick and creamy, set warm; if it hardens it can be softened by heating in a double boiler. This is much better than the usual way of spreading the pancakes with butter and then syrup.

Suggestions

Scalloped Bloomers
When your rubber is worn out in the legs of your silk bloomers, instead of replacing rubber, cut off hem and cut about six scallops. Now roll edge of each one and overcast with a contrasting color silk thread, using a double thread. This makes a nice finish and when well done will outwear the bloomers.

House Cleaning Helps

Grease spots on wall paper may be removed by rubbing with camphorated chalk.

To clean painted wall, dissolve two ounces of borax in two quarts of water. Add one teaspoonful of ammonia. Put half this mixture into a pail of water. No soaps should be used with this mixture.

To remove wall paper, use a heaping teaspoon of saltpeter to one gallon of hot water and apply to the paper with a brush. The water should be kept hot and applied several times. Paper will loosen and pull from the wall easily.

A little turpentine poured into the corners of wardrobes, trunks, chiffoniers, etc., will keep moths away.

To Clean Felt Hats

Mix equal amounts of flour and salt (one handful). Rub well into the hat with a small brush. When all covered with mixture shake out the hat. It will be very clean and white. This also applies to white furs.

Diet Experiments Vary

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Animal experiments on the subject of the healthfulness or the harm of eating meat are not satisfactory. The animals most often used have been rabbits. It is not exactly a comparison to take a rabbit, used to an exclusively vegetable diet, feed it high protein diets and then draw deductions from what happens to it.

But even so, the reports on such experiments do not agree. One group says the rabbits showed injury, the other group that such rabbits are no different from control rabbits living a normal rabbit life.

Human experiments are equally at variance. The Arctic explorer, Dr. Stefansson, and a companion, agreed to eat nothing but meat for a year in the temperate climate of New York. Someone had said that meat alone was all right for the Eskimos because of the cold of the Arctic circle counteracted the bad effects. They ate about 140 grams (over a quarter of a pound) of protein, 300 grams of fat and 12 grams of carbohydrate a day. At the end of the year their health was unimpaired, there was no rise of blood pressure and no evidence of kidney disease.

Opposing this, an experiment at the University of Michigan concerned a volunteer who was given 327 grams of protein a day. At the end of six months he showed what the experimenters called "evidence of kidney damage." But it has been criticized that the subject received "a truly gargantuan dose" of protein, and that in spite of the evidence of kidney damage and the high daily caloric intake of his diet, he quickly returned to normal conditions and that his health really was not at any time impaired.

You can see from this that the medical profession is not agreed on the subject of eating meat. When the ordinary person would like to know what he should do about the answer comes from the every day experience of the race. Personally I know of no vegetarian doctors. Most of them eat at least a quarter of a pound of meat a day. I know of a number of people who have eaten that much or more and lived to advanced ages. One particular family of heavy meat eaters of my acquaintance consists of five brothers and sisters all over the age of 70 and two over the age of 80.

Meat is admittedly an incomplete food. It is poor in vitamins and inorganic minerals, especially calcium. It is low in "roughage." A mixed diet is by common consent agreed to be the best. People in general will not live on vegetables alone. That was shown by the financial disaster which overtook a prominent chain of restaurants which tried to induce their patrons to eat vegetables and fruits and to cut down on or cut out the meat.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
Ottawa Herald: "Readers of this paper have never been told what to eat to secure vitamins A and D."

Answer: For vitamin A, milk fat, egg yolk, fish oils. For vitamin D, cod liver oil, fish oils, butter fat, coconut oil.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendingning in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

FRAMED

In his spare time these April Shower days, Jess Chambliss reveals he has been engaged in mustering together prospects for his personal Xenia Merchants baseball team, thus setting at rest rumors that he might not put an independent diamond nine in the field this summer.

Providing the weather man relents, Jess hopes to commence shortly the work of rehabilitating the diamond at Washington Park, a project which has been delayed by inclement weather.

The local diamond season will probably be ushered in the latter part of this month with the possibility of the opening Sunday game, Jess opines.

Jasper Ankeny, who pitched most of the game for the Merchants last season, will again return to the fold with Mike Weller, veteran catcher, as his battery mate as of yore. Jess wants another hurler besides Jasper, however, and is angling for the service of or rather, he would like to angle for the services of a twirler named Crew, who is said to be employed in Dayton at present. Crew pitched against the Dayton Shryvers at Cincinnati last year. Jess is puzzled, however, as to how to communicate with him, which just goes to show that all baseball managers have their troubles, no end.

Sam Tangeman may return to the Merchants to play a lot of first base. Lee Rose will probably again be found doing the short stopping, with Jug Conley, field captain last year, at second and a lad named Smith from Wilmington, at third. (Maybe the "Smith" referred to is "Bulldog" Smith for all we know). In the pasture will be seen the familiar faces of the slugging Durnbaugh and the diminutive Johnson, but one garden berth is vacant and Jess is in quest of another outfielder.

Four or exactly half of the eight games booked to date for the University of Dayton baseball team this spring are home-and-home engagements with Antioch and Cedarville Colleges.

The Flyers will get the jump on the big leagues by opening their season at home against Antioch College April 11, the Antiochians being an ancient baseball rival of the U. of D. A return game at Yellow Springs will be played May 13. The first game with Cedarville will be staged at Dayton April 15 and the return game will be played sometime in May.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions Coach Harry Bauman, of the Flyers, has candidates down to serious training. Because many schools are eliminating baseball from spring sports, he has found it difficult, however, to arrange a more elaborate schedule than the present one.

Only a few veterans are remaining from last year's crack nine which won fourteen out of sixteen games.

A feminine fan who can hardly wait until the local softball season opens Monday, April 20, has studied the almanac to find out whether the weather will be favorable for the life-lifting contest and warns that it will be "fair and warm" for the inaugural.

TEAM TO PRACTICE

Candidates for the Junior baseball team organized by Foody Post, American Legion, will indulge in their first practice Sunday afternoon on the Washington Park diamond providing the weather is favorable. It wasn't so favorable Thursday and for this reason the initial practice, scheduled for that afternoon, was postponed until Sunday.

Life Of Knute Rockne

Story No. 3

By J. R. Scott

ROCKNE, PLAYING END, AND GUS DORLIS, BACK, PRACTICED FORWARD PASSING EACH DAY.

CAME 1913 AND A GAME WITH ARMY. THE CADETS WERE OVERWHELMING FAVORITES TO WIN.

ROCKNE ON THE RADIO

BUT THE DORLIS-ROCKNE PASSES WON THE GAME. NOTRE DAME WAS NOW FAMOUS.

IN 1918 ROCKNE SUCCEEDED JESS HARPER AT THE IRISH SCHOOL.

Written for Central Press
By W. R. WALTON

One day, when the World War was thundering to a close in Europe, Coach Knute Rockne spied an awkward young kid playing with one of the hall teams that throng the gridirons at the University of Notre Dame.

Though the boy showed lack of coaching he possessed the sparkle, the manner of a born football player. And Rockne saw that. He put the kid on the varsity squad, gave him careful schooling and in late 1918 the football world began to talk about a new gridiron star soaring to zenith at Notre Dame. The kid was George Gipp.

The next season Rockne had his first unbeaten eleven. Notre Dame trounced Nebraska, Indiana, Purdue, Army, and Michigan Aggies and four other teams. But Gipp was the bright star.

The next year, 1920, Rockne had another unbeaten team, one of his greatest. On that squad was Hank Anderson, Johnny Mohardt, Buck Shaw, Henry Mehre, Roger Kiley, Paul Castner, Chet Wynne, Captain Frank Coughlin—all Notre Dame immortals. But, above all, on that team was also George Gipp.

Gipp, though he suffered from a throat ailment, started against Army and Northwestern. After the close of the season Gipp collapsed, was stricken with pneumonia and died. Rockne was at his bedside when the end came.

Though many great players wore Notre Dame blue after Gipp's day, Rockne always thought of Gipp as the greatest.

The next year, Rockne almost had another unbeaten team, the Irish losing only to Iowa. Nebraska ruined two more spotless records for Knute in 1922 and 1923. Then came 1924 and that immortal quarter, the Four Horsemen.

Behind a great line, Harry Stuhldreher, Sleepy Crowley, Don Miller and Elmer Layden smashed through all opposition and over every goal line they faced to score another perfect season for Rockne. The Irish schedule bristled with the names of such strong teams as Princeton, Army, Georgia Tech, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford, but that didn't stop the Horsemen, that battering, brawny line and Knute Rockne. They finished the season, again unbeaten and untied.

Harper asked his two stars, Dorliss and Rockne, to remain after graduation as his assistant coaches. This both did.

When Harper, who had brought the first rosy tints of football fame to the Notre Dame campus, quit in 1917, followers of the Irish school thought their days of glory were now ended. The newspapers carried a tiny item to the effect that Assistant Coach K. K. Rockne would succeed Harper as head coach. But that didn't mean anything—then.

Rockne's first eleven the 1918 team, did a little better than break even on the season. That was nothing to shout about. But what the public didn't know was that Knute had begun building the foundation of a football machine that was destined to shake the gridiron world.

Monday: Gipp and the Horsemen.

Rock And Gipp, Perfect Grid Pair, Are United

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

"WELL, well, well," George Gipp must be saying, just about now, "look who's here! Welcome home, Rock!"

And there in that happy land, beyond the black, where the stadium is of silver, the goal posts of gold and all games are won, those two whose friendship and affection became one of football's finest sagas must be clasping hands in joyous grip again.

Boy and man. Player and coach. George Gipp and Knute Rockne. Synonyms since 1920. The boy Gipp died for Notre Dame a decade ago. And the man Rockne never forgot.

Gipp idolized his coach in life. To Rockne the spirit of Gipp was always alive and vibrant. When the blue backs of an Irish team last line Rockne could see it. And he could make others see it, too. That's why Notre Dame so often stiffened at the brink and drove forward to incredible victory.

Luck? Please be serious. It was what the spirit of a boy, dead 10 years, and the doctrine of a great football leader, then alive and on the sideline, stood for—the inability to admit defeat before the whistle blew.

NOTRE DAME'S great chain of football triumphs welded by the gridiron genius of Knute Rockne and stretching over ten brilliant years was made solely possible because Rockne was an artist whose touch was a bit more deft and whose strategy just so much keener than those of the rest. But the thought of George Gipp did the trick in the tough spots.

Gipp died just as the winter snows were clouding the campus of Notre Dame. Suffering from a severe sore throat Gipp kept his ailment a secret as he played the Army game in 1920.

That game was a battle royal, a twist of fate. A fine Army eleven smashed into the blue line and cadet cleats drummed a song of victory as the gold-jerseyed horde led by Wally French swept to the goal line again and again.

But Notre Dame wouldn't quit. His face chalky white in the gloom of late afternoon, George Gipp fought like a fury until the enemy cracked and a blue form shot over the line with the winning touchdown. Then he wept when Rockne, his friend and coach, removed him late in the game.

Though exhausted, Gipp hid his condition and later played in the Northwestern game, racing yards to a touchdown and hurling a long pass for another. It was the last superb gesture of a super player. He never played another game. Pneumonia attacked the boy's weakened body and in his little room just off the campus he died.

ROCKNE, who idolized this boy who was everything a perfect football player should be, was with Gipp when the end came. Knute's face would change in later years.

when he told how Gipp looked up and spoke a few last words.

"Rock," Gipp whispered, "if ever a game comes in which the school is facing a licking just tell them to win that one for the old Gipper."

Rockne went out of that room to the highest peak of fame a football coach has ever known. Later Rockne eleven repeatedly swept the country clean of foes. The Nomads of Notre Dame and Knute Rockne became the football counterparts of the Golden Horde and Ghengis, the Great Khan. Proud eastern teams felt the Irish heel. Sturdy southern elevens went down before the blue wave. The ramparts of the far west crumbled before the Notre Dame attack. The central states, homeland of the Nomads, became their kingdom.

But Rockne never forgot George Gipp.

Not so long ago Rockne told a Notre Dame team, facing a formidable foe, what Gipp had asked on his deathbed. Notre Dame won that day.

After Gipp there came many Notre Dame stars. There were the Four Horsemen. The Seven Mules. Garvey, Oberst, Castner, Lieb, Coffal, Carberry, Stuhldreher, Crowley, Layden, the Millers, Cerney, Walsh, Collins, Bach, Degree and Kizer. And then Chevigny, Boeringer, Pariston, Preilly, Colrick, Flanagan, Voedsch, and then Moynihan, Cannon, Law, Twomey, Metzger, Conley, Vezie, Schwartz, Mulner, Elder, O'Connor, Savoldi, Brill, Carideo—

But Rockne never forgot George Gipp.

ROCKNE'S was a stern but honest code. He wanted no quitters, no big-heads, no cheaters in the battalions he led to battle. He held no brief for the softies, the "hotel lobby athletes," as he termed them.

On his way to the Pacific coast, to confer with movie officials about making several football pictures, Rockne knowing he was also needed back in South Bend for spring football practice, chose the quickest route. A tremendously busy man, he took a coast-bound plane. Death struck with lightning-swiftness from the skies. Rockne died—on the job.

NAMED ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR HERE

Appointment of former Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall as assistant defense counsel in an injunction suit pending in Common Pleas Court which involves the controversial Beaver Creek ditch improvement was made Saturday by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

The appointment complied with a joint request made by Prosecutor Marcus McCallister and Greene County Commissioners. Commissioners are named defendants in the action.

MEET THE MANAGER

BY JACK SORDS

Roger Peckpaugh, big chief of those Cleveland Indians, has been assembling, the past few seasons, in the big wigwag on Lake Erie, a strong pennant contender. One of these seasons—it may be this one—Cleveland will step out and make it tough for the A's, Yanks and Senators.

Peckpaugh today is managing the club which gave him his start in major league baseball twenty-one years ago. Born in Wooster, O., February 5, 1891, Peck found himself, at nineteen, on the roster of the Redskins.

However, Peck played only fifteen games for the Indians that year, being shipped to New Haven.

WEARY JURORS FIND GUILTY VERDICT IN LINGLE DEATH CASE

dict of guilty had been reached or sought without direct evidence of some kind leading to the reason for the crime.

The secret was locked in gangland, Wayland C. Brooks, prosecutor, had told the jurors, and the court instructed them they could find a verdict of guilt without it.

The whole case pivoted on the question of identification. The state presented eight witnesses who identified Brothers and through their evidence he was found waiting for Lingle at the entrance of the tunnel, throwing the gun away after the shooting and fleeing from the death scene.

The defense presented seven witnesses to rebut this, each declaring that Brothers was not the man who killed the racketeering reporter.

Two features made the long jury wait unusual in the criminal court building. One was the scarcity of actual news coming from the jury room. The other was the tenacity with which the unattached public clung to the courtroom and nearby corridors.

The jurors were three guarded doors away from the public and no one except the bailiffs could get by the first door.

Brothers faces another murder charge at St. Louis where he is charged with killing John DeBlase, a cab driver, in Aug. 1929. Two officers came from that city several days ago and were here in an effort to take Brothers back with them in the event he was acquitted.

CLEVELAND SLAYER FACING LIFE TERM; DEFENSE TO APPEAL

after the jury had been given the case for deliberation on Thursday.

Defense attorneys William Minshall and Samuel Rosenberg announced immediately that they would seek a new trial for their client. After a conference with Judge Walter McMahon, who heard the trial, the date for the hearing of the motion was set for next Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

At that time, unless the motion for a new trial is granted the defense, Hymie Martin will hear the sentence of life imprisonment pronounced.

Martin, a tall figure throughout the trial, plainly showed the strain of the ordeal when he stood up to hear the verdict. His hands twitched and great beads of perspiration appeared on his forehead. But he took the verdict calmly and had regained his composure before he was led back into his cell.

At his cell last night, he told newspapermen that he was glad for one thing—that the jury had reached a verdict. He still maintained that he was innocent but the look of confidence that had marked his face during the trial was gone.

The mayor was dramatic then, as usual, but he was serious. He was serious, too, in 1929, when he ran for re-election. He may find it necessary to be serious again.

For the most serious charges made against a New York mayor since the investigation of the Tweed ring were placed before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for action.

Citizens have demanded the removal of the jazz mayor, and in terms that cannot be laughed off.

Headlines Tell Story

There must have been a touch of bitterness to the man who has kept New York chuckling at his sallies for six years when New York friends frantically commended him with him at Sam Untermyer's Palm Springs palace in California the other day and told him to keep his mouth shut.

The headlines tell the story of the latest chapter in the biography of Jimmy Walker.

"WALKER'S ADVISERS TRY TO SILENCE HIM. Time for wise-cracking past, they warn."

It was estimated that all but 20,000 of the natives in the devastated region have been evacuated. Airplanes carried 200 refugees, most of them Americans, to the port of Corinto. A number of American men volunteered to remain here and aid in the rescue work.

Flames still crackle in various parts of the city, painting the overhanging smoke pall with a brilliant blue. Digging squads, under the eyes of armed patrols, continued to search for bodies under the heaps of falling masonry, burying the dead in a large ditch outside the city as fast as the bodies can be brought out. In the last twelve hours a total of 572 bodies were recovered.

As the ruins yielded more and more dead, authorities were inclined to raise previous estimates of 1,000 dead to as high as 5,000. Because of the many that were cremated in the conflagration Tuesday and Wednesday, it was pointed out that the actual number of fatalities would never be known.

Mrs. Flo France of Springfield spent last Sunday with Mr. Addie Cummings and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Allen was called to Mansfield last Friday night on account of the illness of their son Edgar who is suffering with typhoid fever.

WALKER WISECRACKS SILENCED BY PROBES

Life Story of Mayor James J. Walker of New York

WALKER WAS SERIOUS when he made pledges during his candidacy, and he was serious when he ran for re-election. He may find it necessary to be serious again.

(This is the concluding story in a series on the life of Mayor Walker of New York.)

By HOWARD P. JONES

Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, April 4.—Folk have been finding out things in New York. Some of these things have been in the class of petty gratings; others have been sinister. Recently there were thirty investigations of city departments or officials pending.

Among the highlights are:

1. Innocent women have been framed and guilty women have gone scot free as a part of a police system which demands tribute from its victims.

2. Women about to testify to alleged irregularities have been murdered before they could appear before the grand jury.

3. Matters in connection with bank failures require explanation.

4. Magistrates resign right and left under fire.

5. Charges that decisions of the board of standards and appeals have been bought.

6. Charges that judgeships have been bought.

Walker's "Underworld" Statement. It may not be sporting, but it is interesting to look at a statement of the mayor's, made in October, 1925, when he was a candidate:

"The man who says the underworld will thrive under my administration doesn't know me. I have lived in this town all my life, and I know where the crooks, the stick-up men and the purveyors of vice can be found. And I pledge to you that if I am elected, I will personally go out on the streets if need be, and drive every criminal out of town."

The mayor was dramatic then, as usual, but he was serious. He was serious, too, in 1929, when he ran for re-election. He may find it necessary to be serious again.

For the most serious charges made against a New York mayor since the investigation of the Tweed ring were placed before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for action.

Citizens have demanded the removal of the jazz mayor, and in terms that cannot be laughed off.

LOVE, PREFERRED THE ROMANCE OF A BUSINESS GIRL

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Dad's Girl," "Joretta," Etc.

Copyright 1931, Central Press Association

READ THIS FIRST:

Demure, poised, practical, industrious Mary Vaughn is private secretary to Ronald K. Foster, a prominent investment banker of Wall Street. Her busy life has afforded her little time for pleasure, for she has been the support of the family since her father's death four years before. There are her mother, Tim and Ted, the ten-year-old calamity twins, and Bonnie, who is only two years younger than Mary; but she has been the baby of the family for ten years, and the beauty, as well, Bonnie never could be depended upon to help with the family finances, and Mary cannot remember the time when she did not have to take care of Bonnie and give her the best of everything.

Bonnie abhors work, and makes it plain to everyone that she is not going to leave all her days for a meager living.

Mary commutes every day from over in New Jersey, and her work has been her world until she met Dick Baldwin, the new wholesale man for another firm in "the street," and a former football star, began to take her out.

He asks her to a dance at the University club, and five minutes afterward Foster asks her to work late that evening. She tells Dick she cannot go with him and resumes her work. When she leaves the office that night, weary and burdened with disappointment, Mary finds Dick awaiting her outside. He insists upon driving her home to change for the dance. Very happy, Mary rejoices that the new chiffon evening dress, which she had selected for just such an occasion, is ready to wear. Reaching home, she finds that Bonnie is just leaving with a new boy friend, and has with her a new dress, which she refuses to give up to Mary.

Mary wears her old dress to the club dance and has a wonderful time. Bonnie, coming in later, opines that her party was not "so hot," and tells Mary that her dress is ruined because someone spilled punch on it. Dick invites Mary to a football game, which she accepts, then turns her attention to Martin Frazier, who is Foster's wealthiest client. He comes to the office in person, especially to see Mary, and often suggests that she allow him to back her in buying some good stock. Mary handles him with polite diplomacy. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The Theater

Five years ago the Warner boys, who had started a motion picture production business with a film of James J. Ger-
 's "My Five Years in Germany," were about at the end of their string, a jump or two ahead of the sheriff and ching for the smelling salts.

When the sound picture device, which had been used in the silent era, was introduced to every producer in the business and rejected, was suggested to the Warners, who had started with a bicycle shop in an old town and had branched out into the exhibition of pictures in re-room theaters.

The Warners, snatching at a new law, took the invention to their hearts, produced the first successful sound pictures and, after Alson "sold" the new idea with a gently successful film, the Warn-found themselves on top of the motion picture world. With a head art on other producers, they have yielded their place in the sun.

MARY ASTOR

All of this is a prologue to the founding statement that all but one of the pictures so far booked for exhibition in Xenia theaters during the coming week were made in these former bicycle repairmen. The Orphum Theater has the Warner Bros. contract and will exhibit three Warner films in rotation there beginning Sunday. The Bijou Theater exhibits First National, which is owned by Warners and will show two pictures made by this company. The other Bijou lease is by RKO. "The Life of the Party" need not feel embarrassed to find itself in the midst of this galaxy of Warner talent, for the vehicle is "The Royal Bed," a highly select comedy featuring
 Bill Sherman, Nance O'Neil and Mary Astor. Sherman acts in the film and directs it and, in spite of a misleading name it is a clean and bright story, ably done and marked "very good" by the film bureau of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae. The film is at the Bijou Sunday and Monday.

CONFIRMATION AND CANTATA WILL MARK PROGRAM ON EASTER

Reception of new members by confirmation will mark an important part of the morning worship service Sunday in the First Lutheran church beginning at 10:30 a. m.

Members of the catechetical class have received religious instruction weekly for the past five months from the pastor, the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold. The class officers included Ralph Louis Nichols, president; Richard Dean Huffman, vice-president; Pearl E. Davis, secretary-treasurer. Others in the class are: Louise E. White, Wilma Lucille Bone, Mae Louise Davis, Katherine Marie Randall, Evelyn Morris Myers and Marjorie Mae Randall.

Learning of the books of the Bible under their various divisions together with the ten commandments, the Lord's Prayer, the Apostle's Creed, Baptism and the Lord's Supper, constituted the main divisions during the course of study. These young people will receive their first Holy Communion Sunday.

A similar class with more than twelve members is already being enrolled to begin the course of religious instruction October 15.

Appearing for the first time in new vestments, the First Lutheran choir will present the Easter cantata, "Triumphal Life," (J. S. Fielder) at a vesper service at 4 p. m. Mrs. Homer T. Gatz will direct and Mrs. C. F. Mellage will be accompanist.

Material for the vestments was purchased through contributions from the Luther League, Sunday School, Dorcas Class and the Ladies Aid. The robes will be worn by the choir every Sunday. "Triumphal Life" is the story of Easter presented in song. Those who will take part in the musical presentation are: sopranos, Henrietta Fudge, Mrs. J. E. Kohl, Evelyn Nichols, Phyllis Mellage, Mrs. Lewis Urschell, Mrs. Joseph Schardt, and Marjorie Shoemaker; altos, Mary Maxwell, Helen Nichols, Frances Jacque, and Katherine Maxwell; tenors, Harold Pennington, Theodore Jacque, Archer Maxwell and Cary Maxwell; basses, H. M. Fudge, C. F. Mellage, and C. P. Yowler.

The order for vesters included in the Lutheran liturgical service will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Lebold, preceding the presentation of the cantata.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Writer for Central Press

The various branches of farming make almost as much trouble for each other as does that important personage, the consumer.

There is much less talk about disputes within the business, to be sure, but there is scarcely a producer of any kind of farm commodity who does not regard some fellow producer with uncharitable thoughts and a dirty look.

Such a situation bobbed up again in an interesting form just the other day, when the national advisory committee on livestock passed a resolution, at a meeting in Chicago, to the effect that oleomargarine containing more than 50 per cent of animal fats produced in this country, and no imported oils or fats, ought to be free of any tax.

That, of course, is a direct crack at the great dairy branch of agriculture, which won a spectacular victory over oleomargarine in the closing hours of congress.

Oleomargarine, and very good oleomargarine, can be made out of almost any old kind of fat, animal, vegetable—and I almost said mineral. (But I believe imitation butter from crude petroleum is just a little beyond the chemist, as yet, smart as they are.) They use vegetable oils more and more, and the old-time oleo, alleged to be made of unmentionable packing house wastes, is as out-of-date as pantalettes.

The stockmen can see no reason, they declare, why the dairy owners should have the best part of the valuable butter and near-butter market to themselves. The owner of a Shorthorn steer ought to be allowed to spread the nation's bread, on equal terms with the owner of a Holstein cow. But out foreign animal fats and foreign coconut and palm oils, if necessary, but let the packers sell home-produced oleo without handicapping it with any tax. Then the packers can and will pay a little more per pound for our live steers.

It is a pretty good argument, as arguments go, but the dairymen will be found surprisingly deaf in that ear. Butter, they say, is the only perfect bread-spread. Everything else, no matter how attractive to the eye and harmless to the tizzard, is an inferior substitute. If colored to imitate butter, it becomes a dangerous fraud to the consumer. It ought to be prohibited by law, but as we can't do that at least we will put a tax handicap on every pound of it. The public must and shall have its vitamins found only in butter.

And there you are. The dispute may eventually get into congress and the state legislatures, but the chances of the stockmen are not so good. They have a fairly good story. But butter has the vitamin—and what is even more important—it has the votes.

BID FOR CONSTITUTION
BOSTON, April 4.—That the Navy department once considered using the famous old frigate, U. S. S. Constitution, as a target for power fighting ships, was revealed by Moses H. Gulesian, Boston financier, who said he had offered $10,000 for the vessel. As proof he displayed a framed copy of his telegram to Washington and also the answer he received from Charles J. Bonaparte, then secretary of the Navy.

NICARAGUAN CAPITAL IN RUINS AFTER EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE

First picture of the ruins of the city of Managua, Nicaragua, stricken by earthquake and fire with a death toll mounting toward a thousand and tremendous property damage. The quake practically leveled the city, only a few buildings remaining standing. Rushed by plane from Managua to Havana, Cuba, and thence to Atlanta, Ga., this picture was transmitted by telephoto.

FAIR WEATHER FOR EASTER AFTER HEAVY RAIN

YOU can get out your Easter finery Sunday because the forecasters promise fair weather will prevail.

The drenching rain which fell Friday was hailed with delight by farmers because it raised water in streams to a higher level than has been reached for months and offered renewed hope. The backbone of the prolonged drought had been definitely broken.

Water commenced to flow once more in many creeks almost dried up by lack of rainfall and farmers who have been hauling water for domestic purposes since last summer believe the empty wells on their farms may soon be completely replenished.

The rainfall measured 1.11 inches during the twenty-four hours preceding 8 a. m. Saturday and the total precipitation for the first three days of April amounts to 1.63 inches, it is disclosed by Ernest L. Harner, Xenia weather observer.

PORT WILLIAM

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wolfe and sons Harold and Harry of Cedarville, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burba of Burtonville, Miss Irene Stethen, Miss Marie Wood of Jamestown, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Birch Wolfe.

Elmer Conklin of Dayton spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Conklin.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Storer had as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prime and daughter Helen of Seaman, Mr. and Mrs. Starling Borden and daughters Lella and Betty of Painesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bentley have moved into the Reed property.

Mrs. Gertrude Bolser and sons, Paul and Morris of Wilmington, visited Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Pennington and family.

Mrs. J. S. Young and children, Junior and Melba spent Thursday night with Mrs. Elmer Hoover at Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Birch Wolfe and Miss Vera Landen, were shopping in Springfield, Tuesday.

Mrs. Lee Beal and son Roy were in Xenia Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas and Vivian Sharp had as their Sunday dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Newberry and Miss Opal Sharp of Melvin.

Mrs. Estel Whitling had her tonsils removed last Wednesday at Dr. Haines' at Jamestown. Mrs. Whitling has been at the home of her mother, Mrs. Storer, the past week.

AIRPORT SITE READY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 4.—After three years of labor in preparing the site out of a wilderness of salt water marshes, New Haven's airport is about to be equipped with its first group of buildings. Just when the port will be dedicated is uncertain still, though dates have been set at various times in the past. Difficulties with terrain have slowed up the work.

PROFESSOR DIES

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president Emeritus of Ohio State University will officiate at funeral services Monday at 11 a. m., for Dr. Albert Paul Weiss, 51. Ohio State Psychology professor, who died here yesterday of a heart ailment.

Easter Monday Program At White House On Radio

By MILDRED MASON

EASTER Monday program on the south lawn of the White House will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, it is announced. It has not been announced if the program will be carried over station WKRC, Cincinnati.

Folk dances will be staged on the south lawn of the White House from 10 a. m. to 12 m. and from 2 to 3 p. m. by Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves and other young women's organizations. The U. S. Marine Band, Capt. Taylor Branson directing, will play from 3 to 4 p. m. Mrs. Hoover will mingle with the children during the morning and in the afternoon she and the President, with their grandchildren, who this year will spend their first Easter at the White House, will view the gathering from the south portico. The egg-rolling on the White House lawn is an annual feature.

Celebrate "Army Day"

The United States Army will observe Easter Monday as Army Day and a program being arranged in honor of the day will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, will explain the "Purpose of Army Day" in a talk and music will be furnished by the Army band and the Washington High School Cadets, the R. O. T. C. unit from Georgetown University and cadets from St. John's College (Washington). The program is scheduled to be broadcast from 12 to 12:30 p. m.

Quartet is Featured

The International Singers, well known male quartet, will be guest artists on the Atwater Kent hour Sunday from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. over the NBC network through station WSAI, Cincinnati. The four artists are unique in the quality of their singing and their programs are distinctive, ranging from classics through old folk songs to modern Negro spirituals. Several Easter songs will be sung on the program.

Author On Air

Carl Sandburg, author of "Abraham Lincoln: the Prairie Years," and several books of poems, will read from his works on the Ohio School of the Air program over WLW, Cincinnati, Monday at 2 p. m. Sandburg has written several books of stories for children, including "Rootabaga Country" and "Rootabaga Pigeons." Others of his books include "The American Songbook," a collection of native American ballads of the "Frankie and Johnny" variety.

Opera Singer is Guest
Queenie Mario, one of the youngest sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will be guest artist of the Simmons program over the CBS network Monday evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock through WKRC, Cincinnati. Although Miss Mario has spoken several times over the radio this will be the first time she has sung on the air.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bentley have moved into the Reed property.
Mrs. Gertrude Bolser and sons, Paul and Morris of Wilmington, visited Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Pennington and family.
Mrs. J. S. Young and children, Junior and Melba spent Thursday night with Mrs. Elmer Hoover at Wilmington.
Mr. and Mrs. Birch Wolfe and Miss Vera Landen, were shopping in Springfield, Tuesday.
Mrs. Lee Beal and son Roy were in Xenia Saturday.
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas and Vivian Sharp had as their Sunday dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Newberry and Miss Opal Sharp of Melvin.
Mrs. Estel Whitling had her tonsils removed last Wednesday at Dr. Haines' at Jamestown. Mrs. Whitling has been at the home of her mother, Mrs. Storer, the past week.

FAIRFIELD WINNER IN DAMAGE ACTION

After a trial lasting two and one-half days, a jury in Common Pleas Court Friday afternoon returned a verdict for the defendant in the three-year-old $15,000 damage suit filed against the village of Fairfield by Edward M. and Susan M. DeHaven.

The DeHavens claimed the village improperly changed the grade of Ohio Ave. in Fairfield, causing surface water and mud from the thoroughfare to flow across the sidewalk and upon two residence lots owned by them, diminishing the value of their property. The village contended the benefits derived from the improvement enhanced the value of the property and exceeded any damage which may have been incurred by the change in grade.

STARS OF RADIOLAND

Frances Upton

Inasmuch as she leaped into fame virtually over night in the Ziegfeld Follies, comely Frances Upton isn't a bit nervous over her approaching radio debut. Frances also played opposite Eddie Cantor in one of his musical hits not so long ago and now she is recognized as a young lady with a delightful voice as well as many other charming attributes.

YOUTH WANTED HERE IN BURGLARY CASE SUBMITS TO ARREST

Arthur Vance, 23, sought by authorities two months in connection with an unsuccessful raid on a hen house on the farm of Charles Forsythe, Lower Bellbrook Pike, January 27, surrendered to Sheriff John Baughn at the county jail Friday with the statement: "I heard you were looking for me."

Sheriff Baughn will confer with Prosecutor Marcus McCallister before arraigning Vance on a charge of breaking and entering the Forsythe poultry house.

Vance was identified, authorities say, as the companion of J. D. Walsh, 45, Xenia, who was indicted by the January grand jury for burglary and larceny, pleaded guilty and was paroled. The raid was thwarted by a youth staying on the farm, who surprised two intruders in the act of leaving the poultry house and fired at them with a rifle. One bullet struck Walsh in the left hand and he submitted to capture, but Walsh's companion, later identified as Vance, escaped.

WILBERFORCE

Members of the senior class of Payne Theological Seminary are delivering their senior sermons in the chapel of the seminary. Last Sunday Mr. Mitchell Culpeper from Battle Creek, Mich., was the speaker. Quite a large audience was present. His subject was, "The Christian's Work."

Dr. A. G. Fairfax, prominent Chicago physician, who was the guest of Mrs. Maud Walker and Mrs. Cora Peters, motored from Dayton Monday afternoon and gave Dr. Fairfax an opportunity to visit the school.

Mrs. Martha Lowell and Mrs. Arminia Young, the mother of the late Col. Charles Young, remain ill at their homes.

Mr. Charles W. Salsbury was called to Detroit to the bedside of his nephew, William, a former student of the school of commerce.

The following teachers have taken advantage of the Spring vacation and have gone to their respective homes: Miss Jesse H. A. Smith, Cleveland; Miss Mabel Hall, Cincinnati; Misses Alberta Banner and J. Brassfield, Columbus; Miss Mamie Winbush, Monongahela City, Pa.; Mr. William Gibson, Columbus; Miss Minerva France, Huntington, W. Va.

Mrs. Mary Maxwell and Mrs. Salie Robinson, matrons of Shorter Hall and the young ladies residing in the dormitory are planning to give a "Hamburg-American Cruise" Friday night, April 17 in the parlors of the building. The trip is to be made on the luxurious steamship, "Shorter," which is scheduled to sail from New York on her maiden trip at 6:30 o'clock, sharp. Space is reserved for 400 guests. The following fascinating foreign countries are booked for a visit: The French Riviera, Egypt, Indo-China, Japan in Cherry Blossom Time, Spain with its many novelties, the great city of London, Italy and an evening in Villa De Paris. The passage for the trip is ten cents and the proceeds are for the Diamond Jubilee to be celebrated next June.

The Misses Juanita Clarke, Ruby Franklin, Carolyn Miller, Marjorie Ross, Florence Harger, Longenirus Herman, Wynema Coleman and the gentlemen friends gave a party at the residence of Prof. and Mrs. A. J. White, Wednesday evening. The young people report an enjoyable evening from 7 to 9:30 o'clock.

The spring vacation of the school started Wednesday and will continue until next Tuesday. A number of students residing in Ohio have taken advantage of the vacation and have returned to their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, in their own incomparable and delightful manner, gave the students and their instructors of the school of commerce a fashionable Easter reception in the assembly rooms of Arnett Hall, last Saturday evening.

The rooms were decorated with flowers, balloons, Chinese lanterns, colored electric bulbs and other appropriate designs in the shape of tiny rabbits and chicks, all bearing the original design for an Easter occasion.

About two hundred guests were present and many of the old graduates from the school of commerce from Columbus, Cincinnati, Springfield, Indianapolis, Ind., and Xenia attended.

Misses Florence Winbush and Mattie Sams, each dressed in Easter colors and representing Punch and Judy, received the guests and presented them with an Easter souvenir and program. They were taken to the host and hostess who wished each a pleasant and enjoyable evening.

A unique schedule was arranged for the carrying out of the program and read as follows: 7 to 7:30, Guests received by host and hostess; 7:30 to 8, Current Conversation Cordial; 8 to 8:30, sit and listen; 8:30 to 8:45, visit to Punch and Judy; 8:45 to 9:45, commercial in a program; 9:45 to 10, Commercial delight for the famished; 10 to 10:15, Let's go home, we've had a good time.

After the guests sang the Alma Mater song, prepared by Bishop J. A. Gregg, when serving as president of the school, the welcome address was delivered by Mr. Charles Smith. The response was made by Mr. H. Monroe Furnell.

Mr. Charles Points, Jr., sang a solo. Miss Ruth Woodson read a paper on "What It Means To Be A Commercial Graduate." This was followed with an instrumental solo by Mrs. Charles Points. After the guests partook of punch the greater part of the evening was enjoyed by the young people participating in the "Commercial a la Promenade" with music furnished by the Wilberforce Orchestra. The last event on the program was the menu, consisting of "Book-keeper's Specials" and "Typist's Sweetbread." At fifteen minutes after 10 o'clock the guests departed and were unanimous in saying: "Let's go home, we've had a good time."

Mrs. George F. Woodson and her daughter, Miss Grace Woodson, motored to St. Louis, Mo., Friday morning to spend the week end with her son, Mr. Fred Woodson who is employed in the St. Louis city schools.

Dr. Harry Lackey motored to Chicago Friday to spend his spring vacation with friends. He will return Monday evening.

Mrs. J. W. Thomas and Misses Inez Edwards, M. France, M. Hall, J. H. A. Smith, J. Brassfield, A. Banner and K. E. Jones gave an "at home" opening of the Scarborough Hall last Friday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock.

The house was decorated and illuminated with shaded lights and fragrant with incense and beautiful flowers. Women living in the hall were handsomely dressed in Easter gowns and made a beautiful picture as they received their guests, escorted them through the living rooms and gave them an opportunity to view the beautiful rooms furnished by the trustees of the C. N. I. Department. After the inspection the visitors were taken to the department where they prepared their own meals, the dining room and the parlors used to receive visitors. When the inspection was over the guests were served punch and other refreshments.

Alpha Theta Chapter of the Royal Crescent Club celebrated its tenth anniversary program in Galloway Auditorium last Sunday evening. The program consisted of the club's history, several musical selections and an address by Mr. John M. Ragland, head of the Negro Civic League in Cincinnati. His subject was "The Status of Negroes in the Institutions of Higher Learning in Ohio." The honored guests of the evening were sisters of the Armare Girls Club and members of the Beth Chapter, Cincinnati.

Misses Carlton Hill, William Smiley, Gravelly Finley, Walter Harris, George McCleod, Guy Ginn, and Charles Hickman, all students of Ohio State University, Columbus, visited old schoolmates on the campus, Saturday evening.

Misses Katie Haskins, Myrtle Humons, Willette Gaines, of Lexington, Ky., and graduates of the university, motored up from Lexington, Ky., Saturday evening and spent Sunday with their friends.

Bishop John A. Gregg of Kansas City, Kansas, former president of Wilberforce University and the presiding bishop of the Fifth Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Church arrived Thursday morning from Cleveland and gave a reception to the residence of Supr. R. C. Smith in honor of the members of the Boule Society from Dayton, M. dletown, Lima, Wilberforce Piqua.

Bishop Gregg, acting as the host, delivered a spicy address to guests, reminding them of his joyable evenings with them while he resided at Wilberforce. He complimented the members for their splendid educational work and assistance given to young men and women who were striving to get an education. He spoke in complimentary terms of Western University in Kansas City, Kan., of which he has supervision.

Mrs. Gregg was unable to attend so Mrs. Nellie Bundy acted as hostess and invited the guests to a spacious dining room. The table was decorated with flowers, candles and baskets filled with different colored candies. In the center of the table was a large mirror surrounded with roses and carnations. The guests were served delicious luncheon.

Under the guidance of Bishop Gregg, acting as toastmaster, short toasts were made by Rev. S. Brown, of Cleveland, Dr. L. C. Cox and Dr. B. A. Rose of Dayton and Dr. F. A. McGinnis of Wilberforce and other visitors.

President and Mrs. G. H. Jor motored to Springfield Wednesday morning and spent several hours in the city while President Jor was looking after business connected with the school.

Mrs. William A. Anderson, a charming hostess Thursday evening when she entertained members of the Friendship Club at her residence with an Easter social. Her home was beautifully decorated with flowers and other decorations. The guests were served with a luncheon climaxed with ice and cakes. The topic for discussion was a round table talk, "The Ideals of a Happy Home."

ALIENS SLIP IN

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 4.—The port of New London has been the port of easy entry for aliens who are here illegally, according to Federal agents, and a close watch has been established here. With a few days three such visitors were picked up, one working as deck hand on a steamer running a great fish works here. He was an Irish National Two Greek Nationals also were found, both having come across as seamen.
